JURY TRIAL DEMANDED

DEFENDANT’S MEMORANDUM OF LAW IN SUPPORT OF ITS MOTION FOR PARTIAL DISMISSAL OF PLAINTIFF’S COMPLAINT

I. Introduction

Defendant, the City of Philadelphia, by and through its undersigned counsel, hereby file the following memorandum in support of its Motion to Dismiss Plaintiff’s Complaint for failure to state a claim upon which relief may be granted.

II. Factual and Procedural Background

On May 15, 2013, Plaintiff filed a Complaint. See Docket, Doc. 7. Plaintiff’s Complaint alleges that on four different occasions, his rights were violated by at least four different Corrections Officers who were employed at the Curran Fromhold Correctional Facility (“CFCF”). Id. generally. In his Complaint, Plaintiff names the City of Philadelphia, the Philadelphia Commissioner of Prisons, Warden at Curran Fromhold, Corrections Officer Sam, Corrections Officer Coleman, Corrections Officer Lynch, and Corrections Officer Melton. Id. Plaintiff alleges in Section D of the attachment to his Complaint that Defendant Corrections Officer Lynch prevented Plaintiff from having “free and unfettered discourse with [his] attorney,” which Plaintiff argues was “consistent with the pervasive and persistent disregard of the health and welfare as well as the Constitutional Rights” of Plaintiff as a prisoner. Id.

However, Plaintiff’s Complaint contains no causes of action against the City of Philadelphia. Id.

I. Legal Standard

When considering a motion to dismiss under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 12(b)(6), the Court must take all allegations contained in the complaint as true and construe them in the light most favorable to plaintiff. H. J. Inc. v. Northwestern Bell Tel. Co., 492 U. S. 229, 109 S. Ct. 2893, 2906 (1989); Rocks v. City of Philadelphia, 868 F.2d 644, 645 (3d Cir. 1989). The Court should consider the allegations in the complaint, accepting as true the facts alleged in the complaint and all reasonable inferences that can be drawn from them. See Markowitz v. Northeast Land Co., 906 F.2d 808, 812 (3d Cir. 1990).

The United States Supreme Court revisited the long-existing standards of Conley v. Gibson, 355 U.S. 41 (1957), that applied to reviewing motions to dismiss under Rule 12(b)(6) in Bell Atlantic Corp. v. Twombly, 127 S.Ct. 1955, 1965 (2007). In Twombly, the Supreme Court rejected the language in Conley, providing that a District Court may not dismiss a complaint “unless it appears beyond doubt that the plaintiff can prove no set of facts in support of his claim which would entitle him to relief.” Id. at 1968-70. “[A] plaintiff’s obligation to provide the grounds of his entitlement to relief requires more than labels and conclusions, and a formulaic recitation of the elements of a cause of action will not do.” Id. at 1964-65 (citing Papasan v. Allain, 478 U.S. 265, 286 (1986) (“on a motion to dismiss, courts ‘are not bound to accept as true a legal conclusion couched as a factual allegation.’”)).

The Third Circuit has addressed the standard for a motion to dismiss in light of Twombly, and has determined that the following standard applies when considering motions to dismiss: “courts accept all factual allegations as true, construe the complaint in the light most favorable to the plaintiff, and determine, whether, under any reasonable reading of the complaint, the plaintiff may be entitled to relief.” Phillips v. County of Allegheny, 515 F.3d 224, 233 (3d Cir. 2008) (To state a claim, a plaintiff must state “enough factual matter (taken as true) to suggest the required element, [which] does not impose a probability requirement at the pleading stage, but instead simply calls for enough facts to raise a reasonable expectation that discovery will reveal evidence of the necessary element.” Id. at 234. In other words, “the allegations of the complaint should plausibly suggest that the pleader is entitled to relief.” Sovereign Bank v. BJ’s Wholesale Club, Inc., 533 F.3d 162, 173 n.7 (3d Cir. 2008).

The Third Circuit has applied its reading of Twombly to a variety of legal claims. In Phillips, supra, a case brought under 42 U.S.C. § 1983, the Court held that Twombly’s “plausibility” standard is not restricted to antitrust cases. 515 F.3d at 234. In Wilkerson v. New Media Technology Charter School, Inc., 522 F.3d 315, 322 (3d Cir. 2008), the Third Circuit extended Phillips to an employment discrimination case. Similarly in Sovereign, supra, the Court applied Twombly’s plausibility standard and its holding in Phillips to a complaint alleging negligence and breach of contract.

The Supreme Court elaborated on Twombly’s plausibility standard in its recent decision in Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 129 S.Ct. 1937 (2009). To survive a motion to dismiss, Iqbal explains, “a complaint must contain sufficient factual matter,” that if accepted as true, states a claim for relief “that is plausible on its face.” Id. at 1949.

After Iqbal, the Third Circuit has stated that district courts should conduct a two-part analysis when presented with a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim. Fowler v. UPMC Shadyside, 578 F.3d 203, 210-211 (3d Cir. 2009). In the first part of the analysis, the factual and legal elements of a claim should be separated. The district court must accept all of the complaint's well-pleaded facts as true, but may disregard any legal conclusions. Id. The tenet that a court must accept as true all of the allegations contained in a complaint is inapplicable to legal conclusions. Iqbal, 129 S.Ct. at 1949.

Second, a district court must determine whether the facts alleged in the complaint are sufficient to show that the plaintiff has a “plausible claim for relief.” Fowler, 578 F.3d at 211 (citing Iqbal, 129 S. Ct. at 1950). In other words, a complaint must do more than allege the plaintiff's entitlement to relief. A complaint has to “show” such an entitlement with its facts. As the Supreme Court instructed in Iqbal, “[w]here the well-pleaded facts do not permit the court to infer more than the mere possibility of misconduct, the complaint has alleged-but it has not ‘show[n]’—‘that the pleader is entitled to relief.’” Iqbal, 129 S. Ct. at 1950. This “plausibility” determination will be “a context-specific task that requires the reviewing court to draw on its judicial experience and common sense.” Id.

II. Argument

A. Plaintiff has not pled a policy or practice of the City of Philadelphia which violates his constitutional rights.

Plaintiff has failed to plead facts which support a cause of action against the City of Philadelphia. To prevail under § 1983 against a municipality, a plaintiff must demonstrate that the municipality itself, through the implementation of municipal policy or custom, caused the underlying constitutional violation. Monell v. Dept. of Social Svcs., 436 U.S. 658 (1978). The Supreme Court held in Monell that a municipality will not be held liable on the basis of respondeat superior; it will only be held liable where there is evidence establishing that the alleged constitutional violation was the result of a municipal policy, custom or practice. Monell, supra, 436 U.S. at 691-95. Plaintiff alleges no facts in his entire Complaint regarding a policy or custom of the City of Philadelphia. (See generally Compl.) Therefore, Plaintiff has failed to plead a claim upon which relief may be granted against the City of Philadelphia and the City should be dismissed from the suit with prejudice.

III. Conclusion

Wherefore, for the reasons stated above, the Court should grant Defendants' Motion to Dismiss and Plaintiff's claims against the Moving Defendants should be dismissed with prejudice.
